

I. R. Alexander G4AKD

Question 1 No; I do not have internet access

Question 2 No; Licenses should have a finite life 5-7 years & then requiring renewal. This is the only way an up to date data base of of Radio Amateurs will be available.

Question 3 All licenses should be paid for whether issued electronically or by post. This would ensure income to Ofcom to cover the cost overall of administering Amateur Radio

Question 4, As 3 All should pay

Question 5, YES, we should not be exempt from holding an actual licence. If challenged we should have a document giving us legitimacy.

Question 6 Again we should not be exempt at any time.

Question 7 Yes, the renewal period should be approximately 7 years. long enough to reduce administrative costs but short enough to ensure a reasonably accurate record exists of our numbers.

Question 8, Answered in 7 above

Question 9, An administrative charge for a NOV is entirely reasonable