

Some of the spectrum needs to be ring-fenced for HD transmission over the DTT. Failure to do this will result in the UK having a two-tier television service. Consumers are investing in new technology (i.e HD Ready Television sets) and should expect to receive a free-to-view HD service. Every one should be able to experience the astounding quality of HD broadcasts – the BBC are already producing HD programming, which the license fee has funded – let the license payers see it in all its glory!
