

Virgin Media supports Ofcom's plan to release the spectrum, made available by analogue switch off, through a fair, market-based auction. Virgin Media strongly believes that any other mechanism for allocation would compromise the scope for effective competition in the UK broadcast market.