ACCESS SERVICES REVIEW 2009

I am blind and have had access to AD television programmes for quite some time. AD is wonderful – it's much more than that but the thesaurus can't come up with a better word. It allows me, and of course all other blind and partially sighted people, to 'watch' programmes independently – without having a sighted person 'commentating'.

What I found astounding, when I first used AD, was realizing exactly how much I must have been missing in the past. As far as I am concerned there cannot be too much – the more the merrier.

I have, therefore, voted for Option 2.
