Additional comments:

Question 1: Do you agree that copy management would broaden the range of HD content available on DTT and help secure its long term viability as a platform? :

no, do not allow the media corporations to bully the bbc into using hd copy protection, it can only hurt consumers

Question 2: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed multiplex licence amendment represents the most appropriate means for securing an effective content management system on HD DTT? :

no, the bbc should have to provide an open service, available to everybody, copy protection is clearly not in the public interest.

Question 3: Do you agree with the proposed change to Condition 6 in the Multiplex B Licence? :

i don't know about this, but copy protection is bad

Question 4: Do you agree that Multiplexes C and D should be granted a similar amendment to their Licences as Multiplex B?. :

Question 5: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed approach for implementing content management would safeguard citizens and consumers legitimate use of HD content, and if not, what additional guarantees would be appropriate? :

no, its not what the bbc is there for. the bbc is there to provide and open service available to everybody.

Question 6: Do you agree that the BBC?s proposed choice of content management technologies will have only a negligible impact on the cost of HD DTT receivers and their interoperability with other HD consumer equipment? . :

no, it will enable manufactures to gain control over an existing market that is currently open. it will enable them to bully consumers.

Question 7: Do stakeholders agree that the BBC?s proposed Huffman Code licensing arrangements would have a negligible effect on the market for HD DTT receivers? :

copy protection is not acceptable full stop. its limiting what can and can't receive the broadcasts, which should be open and available to everybody.

Question 8: Do the BBC?s proposed content management states and their permitted use for different categories of HD content meet the requirements of other HD broadcasters on DTT? . :

no, its not acceptable. see above.

Question 9: Are there any issues that you consider Ofcom should take into account in assessing the BBC?s proposal, that have not been addressed by this consultation?:

this is not acceptable, you need to stop the media companies from trying to establish a strangle hold over our currently open broadcast system
