Statutory framework

Under the Broadcasting Act 1996 (“1996 Act”) licences for local digital television programme services (“L-DTPS”) must include such conditions as appear to Ofcom to be appropriate for securing, amongst other things, that the character of the licensed service, as proposed by the licence holder when making the application, is maintained for the duration of the licence.<sup>1</sup> This requirement is reflected in Condition 5(1) of the Licence and the programming commitments set out in the Licence. Ofcom has power to vary the conditions of a licence by notice.<sup>2</sup>

The statutory framework provides that conditions included in an L-DTPS licence may authorise Ofcom to consent to a departure from the character of the service if four statutory grounds are met, and sets out a procedural requirement for a public consultation before Ofcom can decide to consent to a departure from the character of the service.<sup>3</sup> These requirements only apply where the change requested is a departure from the character of the service.

Ofcom decision

The Ofcom Board has delegated the discharge of some of its broadcasting service functions to a number of senior Ofcom executives in the Content and Media Policy Group and Legal Group. Those individuals, on their own or together, have responsibility for deciding on the award of, and proposals for variations to, L-DTPS licences.

On 8 May 2019, Ofcom’s Principal, Broadcasting Licensing and Programme Operations (the “Decision-maker”) considered the variation request.

The Decision-maker noted that the requested variations to the programming commitments in the Annex of the licence for the service are specific to local news and current affairs output. The Decision-maker compared the proposed reductions to the existing commitments and noted that the reduction would equate to approximately 10% of the output focusing on local news and current affairs programming.

Finally, the Decision-maker noted that the amendment requested the removal of aspirational targets proposed by the licensee at the point of their application for the licence. These additional commitments to local news and current affairs that appear in ‘year 3 Onwards’ in the commitments are not yet being broadcast to viewers and as such, the impact to viewers will be relatively small.

After careful deliberation, the Decision-maker considered that, the character of the service overall would still be maintained following the requested variation. In particular, given the reduction is relatively small when compared to the existing commitments, there would be no noticeable difference in the output from the perspective of viewers. Accordingly, on 8 May 2019, the Decision-maker decided that the requested variation would not constitute a departure from the character of the service, and that it should be allowed.
