Additional comments:

Question 1: Do you agree that copy management would broaden the range of HD content available on DTT and help secure its long term viability as a platform? :

no, I dont think so. I think it is unnecessary and needlessly restrictive.

Question 2: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed multiplex licence amendment represents the most appropriate means for securing an effective content management system on HD DTT? :

No, I dont think so.

Question 3: Do you agree with the proposed change to Condition 6 in the Multiplex B Licence? :

No.

Question 4: Do you agree that Multiplexes C and D should be granted a similar amendment to their Licences as Multiplex B?. :

Question 5: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed approach for implementing content management would safeguard citizens and consumers legitimate use of HD content, and if not, what additional guarantees would be appropriate? :

I don't think any additional guarantees would help, here - the whole idea of removing power from the people by scrambling content people are paying for is absurd. Legitimate use would be trampled by these policies.....and pirates will circumvent them anyway.

Question 6: Do you agree that the BBC's proposed choice of content management technologies will have only a negligible impact on the cost of HD DTT receivers and their interoperability with other HD consumer equipment? . :

Nope. Its likely to push prices up, and yet decrease the utility.

Question 7: Do stakeholders agree that the BBC's proposed Huffman Code licensing arrangements would have a negligible effect on the market for HD DTT receivers? :

Question 8: Do the BBC's proposed content management states and their permitted use for different categories of HD content meet the requirements of other HD broadcasters on DTT? . :

Question 9: Are there any issues that you consider Ofcom should take into account in assessing the BBC's proposal, that have not been addressed by this consultation?:

I think OFCom should think about the spirit of the law, the majority and what constitutes the rights of the people. Most people have no desire to violate the law, but if they are put in a position where they face severe curbs on normal use, they are likely to do so.

The BBC was created in part to facilitate the flow of information. It should not connive to stifle such a flow.
