It was advised that there weren't any reporting from any of the networks that consumers were as significantly affected as had been the case with Storm Arwen but Ofcom was contributing to ongoing reviews relating to power and telecoms being led by the UK Government that would also include learnings from Malik and Corrie. In conversation, the committee also highlighted concerns with the ongoing migration to VOIP/ PSTN switch off process. The Ofcom Scotland Director noted his team was directly engaging with the Scottish Government's resilience team and other Scottish stakeholders on these issues. • It was highlighted that the Scottish Budget had recently passed and that there were no changes to the Scottish Government's spending commitments on Connecting Scotland, R100 or the 4G infill programme. In relation to Connecting Scotland, it was advised that colleagues from the Ofcom Scotland team would be speaking to the Connecting Scotland delivery team to understand what happens when consumers reach the end of their contract and move out of the scheme. • A member asked if an update could be provided on R100 as it was not particularly clear what had been committed to and what had been delivered. The Ofcom Scotland Director agreed to speak to the Scottish Government and noted his understanding that the programme was due for completion in 2026/27. • Moving on to the Public Policy update, an Ofcom colleague gave a brief summary of their report. • The Chair asked about the creation of Consumer Scotland and if this was going to be an area of confusion in the future.
