

Question 1: Do you agree that Ofcom should grant approval to Royal Mail for the Delivery to Neighbour service? If not please explain your answer. :

No!

The Royal Mail trial did not include London where there is much high density, multi occupancy homes.

Most people don't know their neighbours and don't want to have to chase their post around.

I personally do not trust my neighbours to receive certain higher value items.

Who is responsible for the parcel once it is delivered to a neighbour? Should it be stolen or destroyed by fire who is liable?

I do not want to be responsible for somebody else's post. If I receive it and then go on holiday for two weeks, how would they get it?

Undeliverable post should go back to the local sorting office / depot.

Question 2: Are there other consequences following the roll out of the service across the UK that we have not included in our assessment? If so, please explain.:

I haven't ready your assessment.

Question 3: Do you have any comments on the scope and wording of the proposed Notification and approval:

It seems to have come from nowhere. I was not aware of this neighbour scheme until three weeks ago and Royal Mail only delivered one flyer to the block of flats where I live.

It seems to have been undertaken with stealth and seems a bit of a fait accompli.
