

Question	Your response
Question 1: Do you agree that a new regulatory framework for Public Service Media (PSM) delivery should support a more flexible 'service neutral' delivery approach that is more outcomes focused?	Yes in principle but much tougher penalties. I do not trust the BBC, too dated, too biased, very one sided reporting.
Question 2: Do you agree with our proposals for a clear accountability framework?	Yes
Question 3: What do you think should be included in the PSM 'offer'?	The BBC still lives in the 1950s with scandalous paycales, rampant inequality, a military like structure and behaviour, outrageous expense accounts, relies heavily on repeats and very old / long running shows, blatant harassment of people of don't own TV for licence fee. Too much dominance and control over many channels and frequencies. Should be scaled down drastically and stripped of the license fee – laughable in today's hi tech diverse media landscape. Broadcast time, channels and frequencies made available to private sector and new broadcasters.
Question 4: What options do you think we should consider on the terms of PSM availability?	TV based framework and focus must go, so old fashioned now and declining. PSM must broaden to include the now wide range of delivery vehicles and content.
Question 5: What are the options for future funding of PSM and are there lessons we can learn from other countries' approaches?	Basic funding from treasury only for basic set of services. No license fees. Review of use of Public especially in light of suggested large export revenue. If BBC staff want to make films, major TV series etc then move to the private sector.
Question 6: What do you think about the opportunities for collaboration we have referred to? Are there other opportunities or barriers we haven't identified?	Not convinced about this. Blurry lines between PSB and private sector almost certainly leading to poor value for the tax payer, double/triple/quadruple taxation and payment for the same product.

Question 7: What are your views on the opportunities for new providers of PSM?	New providers currently face many barriers not least dominance of parochial, biased and out dated BBC. Should be many more opportunities in broadcast time made available to private sector and new broadcasters.
