Information Requests

Dear,

Freedom of Information request: Right to know request

Thank you for your request for information concerning complaints - news broadcasters and GB News.

We received this request on 20 April 2025 and we have considered your request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Your request

I am writing to request information surrounding the ten news broadcasters (both TV and radio) about which Ofcom received the largest number of complaints annually in 2024 and so far in 2025. In addition to the above, I am writing to request information on the number of complaints received by Ofcom about GB News annually between in 2024 and 2025 so far.

Our response

Before responding to your question, we would like to provide some background information on Ofcom's complaints procedures and reporting.

Complaints about content standards are handled under Ofcom's Procedures for investigating breaches of content standards for television and radio¹.

Ofcom's Broadcast and On Demand Bulletin (the 'Bulletin'), published every fortnight on our website, includes decisions about the complaints we have considered. The Bulletin covers a range of cases, including those which Ofcom has escalated for full investigation, and those which, after careful assessment, Ofcom has decided not to pursue because they did not raise issues warranting investigation. The Bulletin can be accessed on our website.

In addition, Ofcom's Annual Reports include statistics on broadcasting complaints, cases and sanctions for the period 1 April in one year to 31 March the following year, including total investigations recording breaches of the Broadcasting Code (or other Ofcom codes). You can find the full Annual Reports on our website.

For administrative reasons, complaints received by Ofcom are assigned to a case. A case may comprise a single complaint or a number, where they relate to the same programme or issue. We have therefore provided information in the table to distinguish between the number of complaints received by Ofcom and the number of cases which they generated. In addition, although the volume of complaints received may be a consideration in assessing general audience reactions, it is not determinative as to whether Ofcom will proceed to investigate any given case. Rather, it is the particular issues which have been raised by the complainant(s) which are of primary concern in Ofcom's assessment of a programme.

I hope this information is helpful. If you have any further queries, then please send them to information.requests@ofcom.org.uk – quoting the reference number above in any future communications.

Yours sincerely,

Information RequestsRequest an internal review

If you are unhappy with the response you have received to your request for information, or think that your request was refused without a reason valid under the law, you may ask for an internal review. If you do, it will be subject to an independent review within Ofcom. We will either uphold the original decision, or reverse or modify it.

If you would like to ask us to carry out an internal review, you should get in touch within two months of the date of this letter. There is no statutory deadline for us to complete our internal review, and the time it takes will depend on the complexity of the request. But we will try to complete the review within 20 working days (or no more than 40 working days in exceptional cases) and keep you informed of our progress.

Please email the Information Requests team (information.requests@ofcom.org.uk) to request an internal review.

Taking it further

If you are unhappy with the outcome of our internal review, then you have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner's Office.
