

I hear that there is a possibility of a new tv channel for BBCScotland being thought about? Why? Do we need to be any more parochial and blinkered than we are already? I also heard that this may replace BBC4 , I hope this has NO truth in it as BBC4 is the best channel the BBC has!

I am heartily sick of this constant nagging of BBC Scotland thinking that all the Scots want to listen to is something Scottish. There are programmes already splashed across the BBC that provide such programmes for those that want them. Kindly leave the idea where it started, probably by the parochial few trying to brainwash the rest of us who want a wider range of programmes that BBC4 already provide.

Thank you
