

The Digital Economy Act is an ill-conceived, badly written piece of legislation that needs to be repealed. It's not in any way suitable for the task of regulating the internet or keeping piracy under control.