

I am concerned that the DEA, as drafted, does not clearly lay out the responsibilities and/or liabilities of organisations providing free wifi. As an individual that frequently relies on free wifi services I am concerned that this lack of clarity will significantly harm the availability of these kinds of services. I believe government should be doing everything it can to promote the provision of this kind of facility, and the DEA should clearly reflect that priority.