Additional comments:

try living with a mast 15 feet from your front door, and see if you would object to any alteration, to the unsightly/unhealthy urban clutter of a mast 15 metres high

Question 1: Are there any reasonable grounds why Ofcom should not grant the request to vary the five Wireless Telegraphy Third Generation Mobile Licences by increasing the permitted maximum in-band EIRP to 68dBm as soon as practicable? If so, please explain your reasoning for this:

because the masts are detrimental to people's lives although some reports say they are safe some say they are not, the so called experts said that the thalidamide pill was safe?? they also said that we could not catch the bovine disease?? and also that asbestos was safe. then why are people dying from it today?? the experts were wrong then and could be now. so please err on the side of caution and don't grant these licences until you can be 100 per cent sure. and don't put profit before lives

Question 2: Are there any reasonable grounds why Ofcom should not also apply the increased permitted maximum in-band EIRP to future 2 GHz MSS/CGC licences? If so, please explain your reasoning for this:

same reasons as above you are playing with people's lives and causing misery for thousands of people if you want evidence then visit the site of this mast at cf454ex
