

Question 1: Which of the three options do consultees favour, and why?:

Option 2 - Because it's such an excellent method for me to listen and particip[ate ain tv with my friends, family etc. Unfortunately there is not enough of it.

Question 2: Do consultees have any further suggestions for future access service provision? If so please provide the rationale for these suggestions:

EPG - I find it very disheartening that Sky, Freeview etc. can providde a service with EPG and interactive TV that i'm unable to access at all as a blind person. This has been around for numerous years and there is still no solution for people who are blind.

This is mostly related to cable and Sky TV - description on channels such as thomas cook tv where the presenter refers to a graphic on screen such as a phone number and then doesn't tell you what's on it./what the number is.

Comments:

I'm subscribed to audio description RNIB service where I found out about the consultation. I also took part in a previous Ofcom paper.