

Mark Syder

Do I use my personal webspace?

Yes. Family members from different parts of the country gathered together earlier this year for a 70th birthday. Rather than printing several copies of every photograph I took and posting them all over the country I gave my personal website address [web address removed] to everyone there and posted the photographs on the site the following day.

Furthermore, I am the webmaster for my local non-league football club. I have just set up a new site [web address removed] which has a mere 5Mb of space - money is tight in non-league football. I take my camera to every match and take photographs of goal-mouth action to display on the site. A site of 5MB is soon going to be full if I include action photographs from every match, so I intend setting up pages on the club site which access photographs on my personal site. Blueyonder give me 30Mb which will store a lot of photographs.